Bel Air’s Town Commissioners appointed Jesse Bane as Interim Town Administrator in December. Jesse most recently served as Harford County Sheriff from 2006 — 2014.

What was your first thought when the Bel Air Town Commissioners approached you about the position of Interim Town Administrator?

I was stunned. I had been a cop for 42 years. All of my education, experience and credentials are geared toward law enforcement. Once I accepted, some people asked me: “What do you know about water and sewers or about roads?”

If you are going to hold public office, be a CEO or a business owner, it is impossible to be an expert in all areas of the operation. However, principles of management are the same. I also think that running the Sheriff’s office or the Town is similar to overseeing a business.

I owe my career to my wife. She has made lots of sacrifices for me to achieve my career dreams. I won’t say she was happy about the result of the Sheriff’s election, but she was happy to have her husband back. But if I were miserable, she wouldn’t want me around the house. I wouldn’t have taken this job unless she was in full support.

Turn to page 3 to learn more about Jesse Bane’s thoughts on Bel Air, now and in the future.
Spring 2015

Dear neighbors:

Brrr! As I sit at my desk writing this letter, I hope that you were able to persevere through what ended up being a very cold Winter 2015. Snow, ice and freezing temperatures made for what seem to be a longer than normal season. I want to thank Steve Kline and his Department of Public Works crew for their dedicated work in keeping our roads and sidewalks clean. I also want to extend my gratitude to every citizen and business for heeding the call and shoveling their sidewalks and driveways. Collectively, I think we did a pretty good job overall.

Now that the winter is, hopefully, behind us, we can all begin to look forward to Spring 2015. As always, the Town will buzz with all kinds of activity. One of our mainstays, Bel Air’s Farmer’s Market, will celebrate its 40th year in bringing freshly picked and harvested goods from farm to table. Congratulations to all those involved.

Kites will fly again over Rockfield Park in mid-April. Also, we’ll enjoy several new additions to our parks. The recently renovated Plumtree Park on Thomas Street will be completed with a public art amenity and Shamrock Park will now feature a fountain, which was graciously donated to the Town by Kathleen and Bill Bacon.

Regardless of the time of year, we are indeed fortunate to live, work and play in a town that has so much to offer. Spring is special, because it marks a time of renewal when we’re finally able to get outside and enjoy outdoor activities.

So, I hope you find this Spring edition of the Bel Air Bond enjoyable and informative. Welcome Jesse Bane as Interim Town Administrator. Find out more about what’s happening in Bel Air.

Sincerely,
Robert J. Reier, DC

Warm weather is on its way. Check calendar on pages 6 - 8 for upcoming and free concerts in town.

ON THE COVER:
What’s new at Rockfield Manor, the historic event venue located at 501 Churchville Road? Actually, quite a bit. There is a new Executive Director, Jenny Dombeck. Interior structural and cosmetic changes have improved the layout flow. Check out the new Website, www.rockfieldmanor.com, or stop by for a visit. Public walking trails and gardens surround the manor house. Look for more family and community programs in the coming months.
You are the Interim Town Administrator? What does that mean?

I knew that if I took the job, I wanted to do everything to make sure that I did a good job. I wanted both sides to have the chance to look at my performance and decide if I should continue. If not, we'll shake hands and part as friends.

The employees and the citizens have given me a great welcome and this has turned out to be a dream job. I had a dream job when I was sheriff too.

What is the role of government in a small town like Bel Air?

Government agencies, as well as businesses, must offer services, depend on well-trained staff and stay on budget. Each only has so much income. The challenge is how to allocate resources to do what is needed.

If revenue doesn’t match need, we still have a responsibility to the public and must analyze what is going wrong and fix that. I am not advocating more taxes. Quite the opposite.

What were some of the things that surprised you during the first few weeks on the job?

I crossed paths often with Town staff while I worked in the Sheriff’s office. Still, my preconceived notion was that this is a quiet, laid back little town.

Once I took the job, I looked at everything that goes on here and the job the staff is doing. In a way, they are busier than I was at the Sheriff’s Office and I had 10, 12, 16-hour days there. There is a lot going on here.

What do you want the residents to know about you?

My history with Bel Air is not just working here as sheriff. Growing up in Dublin, my family shopped downtown. I went to school here and lived in Bel Air during the first 10 years of my marriage. I plan to be out and in the streets and neighborhoods of Bel Air.

What are the challenges in Bel Air over the next five years?

I think Bel Air is at a crossroads. We have to decide on the right direction with a mix that satisfies everyone. Young people who are now moving in and setting up shops, restaurants, programs and services will influence where we are in 10 or 20 years.

We need to look at traffic and parking issues if we want economic growth. We have people here who are both pro- and anti-business.

The water issue is going to be a problem, not just in Bel Air, but everywhere. We must get a handle on the heroin and addiction problems, which will destroy the quality of life in this community quicker than anything else.

You have no problem in this country driving through towns and telling if they are vibrant or if they are dead. I want to see a town where businesses and homeowners or renters are fighting to get in. We may have that now, but let’s ratchet it up a bit. Finally, we are in the midst of an information revolution. We need to figure out how to keep people walking and driving to Bel Air rather than doing business online. A thriving economy benefits our business people and our residents.

You've spent your previous career in local law enforcement. How does public safety figure into economic development?

This town has a very low crime rate. It is a testimony to the police chief and officers. If you open the door to a criminal element, the good people leave.

Would you like to add anything?

If Bel Air is going to be a viable town in the future, we need to keep moving forward. The next decision is how we are going to move forward.
Ten-year-old Grace E.G. Callwood, a member of Ames United Methodist Church, met a lot of people during her treatment for a pediatric cancer from 2011 to 2014. There were, of course, a bevy of health professionals. However, it was the volunteers who came to cheer up sick children who left the biggest impression.

Even while still in treatment, Grace decided to give back in her own way. She established a nonprofit organization called We Cancerve and assembled a Board of Directors composed entirely of school-aged students. Grace, who is now cancer-free, continues to grow her nonprofit with support from friends and fellow students from a variety of local schools including William S. James and Forest Lakes elementary schools as well as Edgewood Middle School.

The mission and vision, set in place by its young members, is to support and bring happiness to homeless, sick and foster children.

The five-member Board of Advisors, whose parents, (including T’Jae (Gibson) Ellis, Grace’s mother) provide guidance as needed, obtain donations of funds and materials from friends, neighbors, church members and other supporters. They sort, package, organize and deliver donations. Membership on the Board is open to youths from ages 7–18.

We Cancerve has bested a lot of adult-organized groups with tangible results. Since 2011, the group has donated 172 Easter baskets to homeless, sick and foster children; given $1,700 to Sinai Hospital, Casey Cares Foundation and the Harford Family House; donated 150 pieces of new and nearly-new back-to-school clothes to homeless youth; assembled 150 TransFUNers kits to help hospitalized children decorate their IV poles; and donated 140 pounds of school supplies to children in Maryland and Kenya, East Africa.

We Cancerve accepts monetary donations as well as supplies to carry out their mission.

Learn more about their activities, supporters and future plans at www.wecancerve.org. We Cancerve welcomes Scouts, sports teams, sororities and fraternities and business clubs to get involved with their projects. They have also established an accumulator fund with the Community Foundation of Harford County (CFHC).
What a deal: Buy green at a local business and get cash rebates

There is just one more opportunity for property owners in Bel Air to get cash rebates (without need for mailing in coupons and receipts) when they purchase certain eco-friendly and green products such as rain barrels, compost bins and recycling containers from an in-town business.

“These products will help the Town become a more environmentally friendly place,” says Kevin Small, Director of Planning. “They can address homeowner issues such as excessive storm drainage, placement of grass cuttings and containment of recycled material. You could have savings toward water usage and purchase of fertilizer in addition to the rebate.”

Purchase any of these pre-approved items and present the receipt and proof of residency to the Town Finance Department at Town Hall for a rebate of a portion of the price.

- Good Ideas, 50 gal. Rain Wizard: $30.00 rebate
- Good Ideas, 7 cu ft. Compost Wizard Jr.: $45.00 rebate
- Good Ideas, 50 gal. Compost/Rain Hybrid: $75.00 rebate
- Good Ideas, 65 gal. Rain Wizard Urn/Planter: $35.00 rebate
- Rubbermaid, 23/32 gal Slim Jim Recycling Bin: $20.00 rebate
- Toter, 32 gal Recycling Cart: $20.00 rebate
- Suncast, 6.5 cu ft. Tumbling Composter: $40.00 rebate
- Suncast, 50 gal rain barrel: $30.00 rebate

To be eligible, you must own property within the corporate limits of the Town and purchase the product through a retailer in the Town or online with delivery through a local business.

Some 50 years ago, then-Bel Air Mayor Werner Buchal suggested the formation of the Bel Air Community Band, an idea that played on his German roots. Twenty charter members stepped forward.

To this day, the now 90-member Bel Air Community Band brings an eclectic mix of patriotic marches, dreamy classical melodies, Broadway foot-stompers and holiday pops to local audiences. Who says there are no great deals to be found? Admission to all concerts, which take place year round, is free.

Close to one-quarter of the group have more than 20 years of service. Director Scott Sharnetzka, a retired Harford County Public Schools (HCPS) music educator, is a member of the HCPS Educator Hall of Fame. The band’s members, he says, simply “love to make music and bring it to the community.” The next performance, All That Jazz, is at Bel Air High School on May 2 at 7:30. For details on all performances, visit www.belaircommunityband.org/performances.
Prehistoric culture exhibit inside the Liriodendron Ice House reaches way, way back in time

You have to think that Dr. Howard Kelly, the original owner of Liriodendron, would be pleased that the property’s icehouse is now the location of a permanent exhibit called “The Prehistoric Culture of the Northern Chesapeake.”

First, Dr. Kelly, one of the “Founding Four” physicians of Johns Hopkins Hospital, had a well-documented interest in natural history and a significant collection of artifacts. Second, his great-grandson, Dan Coates, has taken the lead in a decade-long effort to prepare the ice house interior for the exhibit.

Dan is the current president of the Archeological Society of the Northern Chesapeake. Over the past 10 years, he and several family members built from scratch a life-sized diorama and assembled a collection of artifacts that cover a time frame that extends from 11,000 B.C. to about the early 1600s. The exhibit reaches to the times of the Paleo Indian, who arrived after the last glacial recession. It moves forward in time as the Susquehanna River changed the landscape, and then onward to the Late Woodland cultures who called the area home just before European arrivals.

The 400-square foot space is filled with hand-made models that depict various modes of Indian shelters, arrowheads, tools, animals and skins. The exhibit focuses on the Indians in the Harford, Cecil and Lancaster (PA) county areas and their primitive technologies. Dan is particularly interested in sharing with visitors the details of what he calls “primitive technologies.” He’ll demonstrate how bones were used for tools, how various projectiles were fashioned and used for food and clothing and how local soapstone was fashioned into household objects.

“The Northern Chesapeake area is often overlooked in favor of the more famous southern Chesapeake Bay,” says Dan. He adds that he designed the exhibit to support Harford County Public School’s 4th Grade curriculum, Maryland Adventure as well as several requirements for the Boy Scout Indian Lore and Archeology merit badges.

“The size of the ice house creates a perfect setting for docents and visitors to have a give and take conversation and for all visitors to ask questions and get involved in discussions,” says Dan. Though he expects to add labeling and design signs for the exhibit, he thinks that conversations and questions “provide a better way to learn about a complex topic. You can’t do that with labels.”

The Prehistoric Culture of the Northern Chesapeake exhibit is open on Sundays from 1:00 - 4:00 p.m. Admission is free; donations accepted. Liriodendron’s building and groups are maintained by the Harford County Department of Parks & Recreation.
